While the Sun Rises

When the full moon falls in the western sky, they await the dawn of a new and different morning.

Early school mornings had different meanings to different people. Some students found one morning different from the next, but most people found their mornings falling into a pattern. To many of them it seemed to be a time of waiting for school to begin.

In the commons area at the high school, friends gathered along the tables, waiting, talking to each other. The murmur was a low roar at 8:00; by 8:20, when the tables were completely filled, the noise was amplified so that the sound was beginning to shake the walls.

Some other favorite places for friends to gather were in front of the office, outside the door to the school, in the library or on the smoking pad. The junior high students congregated where they could, or many of them walked as they talked.

Some students found other things to do while they waited. Many gathered downtown, at the Sandwich Shack or the Wagoner Game Room. A few found time to wash another load of clothes, buy a breakfast, or wash their car before school.

Detention hall filled the early morning hour for some; others filled the time with homework put off from the night before. On some mornings Mrs. Abner's vocal students practiced their music before school.

Not everyone was waiting for that first bell in the morning. For the students who were still sleeping, nothing had substance or reality until they woke up. Some were able to make it to class on time, but the other sleepyheads found themselves talking to Mr. Hayes or Mr. Benham.

I ♥ My Car

To have a car is to have transportation to school and to work but most of all, for weekend cruises. It gives a sense of freedom for those students because when they feel pressured, they can just get in the car and drive far away into the sunset (if Mom will let them).

To be without a car is to be deprived! It is humiliating! Not having a car is like being grounded. It feels like being in jail for commiting a crime they didn't really commit. Without a car, one has to always depend on someone else who has a car, whether family or friends. Not having a car is hard on the Nikes because they wear out so much faster.

But the hardest of all is to have a car — and then not have it anymore, for whatever reason. A car becomes a kind of friend, and when the car breaks down a person can feel downright betrayed!

By the Time:

. . . school starts its first hour,
the kids are all in class;
the cooks are mixing the flour,
and everyone's trying to pass;

. . . the first lunch is near,
and the aroma comes around;
the halls are all clear,
and the bulletin is found;

. . . the teacher reads aloud,
the menu of the day;
the mean and hungry crowd,
begins to roam and stray;

. . . the menu is heard,
the classroom is hushed;
one million stomachs are turned,
one million hearts are crushed;

From the sound of her voice,
and the raise of her ears;
all the kids rejoice,
as they hear;

Hamburgers, cheeseburgers . . .

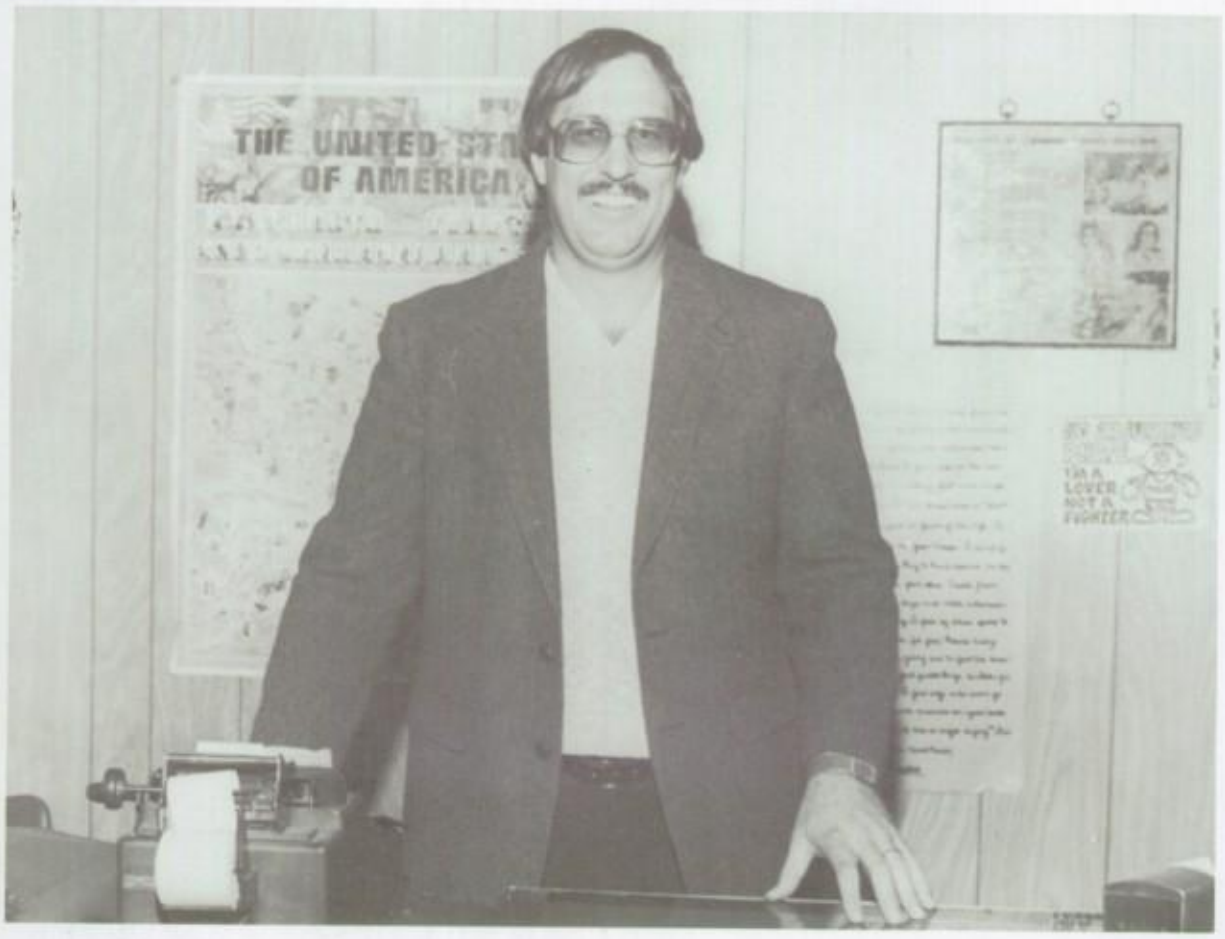
Teachers Are People Too

Don't you ever wonder what all your teachers do in their extra time? You know they can't always be grading papers and filling out failing slips, so we decided we'd step into their private lives. I mean, did you ever think about having a rootin'-tootin' cowgirl teaching Earth Science or a famous actress as a History teacher? You may have trouble believing that all these teachers actually do this, but we can assure you that it is true. Believe it or not.



Early each morning Darrell Morgan wakes up and goes down to his cafe to get everything ready for his hungry customers. Then he rushes to school for his classes. And after school he can always be found back at his cafe, again.

The Main Street Cafe serves homemade food and pies. It is a central point for Wagoner business and school people to gather to discuss affairs. He has owned the cafe for the past 10 years.

He teaches history, civics, and science at the junior high.

Most of us like eating fish, but Clay Frost enjoys catching them. His favorite kind is the catfish, especially the big ones.

"The other day I caught one so big that I was afraid Jonah was gonna pop out," he exclaimed.

The biggest fish he has ever caught was a seven pounder.

When Mr. Frost is not fishing, he is custodian at the high school.

Minerva Stivers has been riding horses since the age of 4. She has 4 horses which are named Goldie, Princess, Snow Flake, and Ginger Blue. Her favorites are Princess and Snow Flake. She most enjoys riding them in the evening.

Many students through the years have been invited to look at the stars through her telescope, and to search for fossils and minerals with her.

Around his desk, it looks like a miniature museum. Richard Blunk has been collecting Incredible Hulks for the past 5 years and he displays them all. It all started the year he first moved into his present classroom. The previous teacher had left a Hulk poster and each year his students have bought him different Hulks.

Another hobby he enjoys is listening to Roy Orbison records. He has all of the records that Roy has ever made.

He teaches 8th and 9th grade American History.

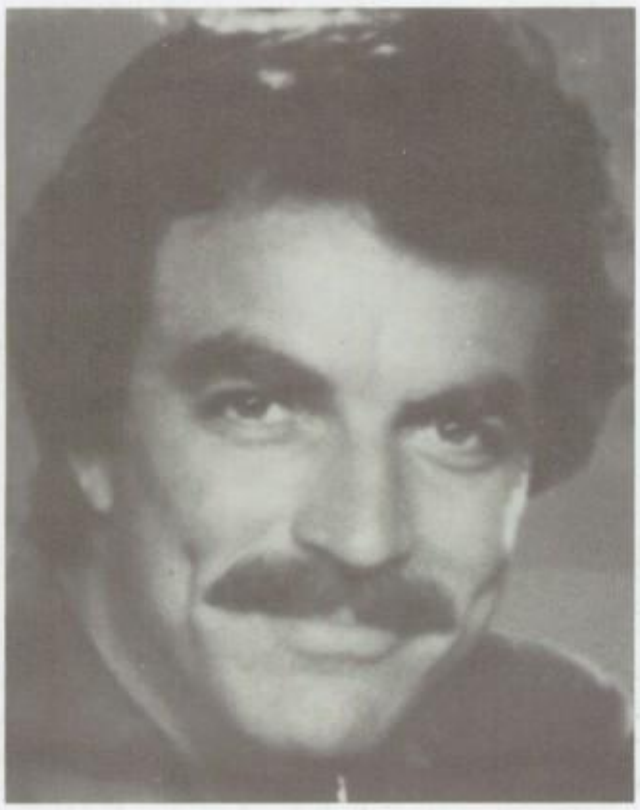
Being a charter member of the Wagoner Playhouse Association since 1981, Janice Aldridge is always excited to get a new role in a play. The role she most enjoyed was playing Kate in "Never Too Late" because the character was lots of fun.

Her most difficult role was playing Helen in Spiral Staircase. Because Helen is a mute, Janice had to do all the acting with her face and body, and no voice. Pictured here with her is Dan French in a scene from that 1982 production.

Mrs. Aldridge never took drama in school, although it was something she always wanted to do. And she encourages everyone to take it in high school.

She teaches 9th grade American History and language arts, and is cheerleader sponsor.

Perfect Date



He arrives at my door with a pink rose and escorts me out to his red Ferrari. We go to the airport and board his private jet. We then fly to Paris for dinner. They we fly to the Bahamas to walking on the beach. We then fly back to Tulsa airport. He brings me home in the Ferrari, walks me to the door, says he had a wonderful time, kisses me goodnight and asks me out again for the next night. And then as I wave goodbye a beautiful sun rises over the horizon.

Getting all dressed up and going out to dinner. Then either go to a movie or to dancing. Or wearing jeans and a t-shirt and just spend the evening with a bunch of friends.

We head to New York in a black Maserati cruising 185. We have a toast with chilled champagne to the beginning of a wonderful evening. We arrive in time to see the Broadway musical "Chorus Line." After the musical we go to Sardi's for their famous cheesecake. As we cross the Brooklyn Bridge, we realize we just had the "Perfect Date."

The two of us would ride registered Arabians out in the fields until sunset. Then we would have a quiet cookout, just the two of us. Later we head for the International Finals Rodeo. We end the evening with a drink and the two-step at Gilley's.

Seven and Coke and we jam on out to a late night "hotspot" where I dance the night away and go back to my castle where I relax by one of my fireplaces. I sip smooth Tennessee Whiskey with my mysterious woman next to me.

Uncertainty Faces Class of '84

The Senior Class of 1984 stepped out into a world filled with troubles.

George Orwell had predicted in his book 1984 that the year 1984 would prove to be a world nightmare of technology, widespread war and destruction.

Tucked safely away in the Midwest, the WHS class of '84 moved through their Senior year like classes have before. The heat of summer seemed as if it would never end, and Seniors were measured for caps and gowns. Finally cool weather brought glowing colors to the trees, and Seniors sold candy bars to finance their spring trip. The holidays passed with parties and service projects.

1984 brought the pressure of college applications, scholarship forms, and financial aid papers to be filled out. And finally with spring; came the whirlwind of activities that made them say on graduation night "the year went by too fast!"

But intermingled with all the sameness, the quiet world of Wagoner was invaded by news reports of terror and wars and American involvement in Lebanon, Central America, Grenada and Europe.

Seniors were now not just thinking of college, marriage, or work choices; they were also faced with military option, computers, and high technology.

If George Orwell's prediction of 1984 comes true; the Senior class of '84 will be ready for what lies ahead!

Sophomores at Bottom of Pile Again

"It's like being in a three-ring circus" was Kevin Richmond's statement on being a sophomore.

For some of the sophomores it was really scary! But not for most of the sophomore guys because they were too busy looking at the girls.

Most sophomores had a different opinion of what it was all about.

Some were scared stiff when they first walked in the doors the first day. But others knew how to handle it and kept control.

"It's like finding the end of a rainbow" Charmagne Gilbert stated, and maybe that means that she found her pot of gold.

"More freedom" was Shelly Elsey's thought.

Stacey Rhodes and Shelly Morgan thought it was like being at the bottom. But by staying together, like other fellow sophomores, they got through the year.

Just Three More to Go!

"I like English class best of all, because we're always doing something ignorant," said one freshman student.

Some of the projects done in "our sweet English teacher's" class were making a "me" collage, drawing pictures of each other and writing what they like about each other's big toe!

But then many students thought, oh no! HORRIBLE HISTORY, SCARY SCIENCE and, of course, AGONIZING ALGEBRA.

But they actually made it through another year; just three more to go!

Spirit Grows as Eighth Graders Move Up Ladder

The eighth graders may not have been the most enthusiastic at every pep assembly but they won the spirit stick their fair share of times. But, it was their enthusiasm that got them through the year.

Most felt that being in the eighth grade was a step from the bottom towards the top and a step closer to "freedom." All loved the new feeling of not being left out, but were mainly looking forward to becoming "freshmen."

Enjoying the Good, Putting Up With the Bad

Along with the advantages of being able to choose and change classes come the disadvantages of tardies and ISS.

These seventh graders began to integrate into the Junior High on August 18, 1983.

Some of the fun things included making Mrs. Ivy mad, playing tag at lunch and winning the spirit stick.

Although having to learn the preamble and getting to class on time presented a problem, the fun of dressing up for Halloween and being with friends made it worth it.

It Wasn't Easy

This was not an easy year for teachers.

First, two national studies printed their reports — both emphasizing the mediocrity of American education compared to that of the past and compared to that in other parts of the world today — but each offering a different set of solutions.

Then the financial recession which hit the rest of the country earlier finally reached Oklahoma. Field trips were cancelled and athletic programs curtailed. Talk of pay cuts and dismissal of personnel made the year an anxious one.

In spite of it all, education went on in classrooms, in the Media Center, in halls, in the lunchroom.

Students took the initiative to raise their own money for field trips threatened with cancellation. They worked the hardest for their most difficult classes. They spoke out on behalf of non-tenured teachers when personnel cuts were threatened. They drove miles away to Tahlequah, to Muskogee and to Tulsa to research in area libraries. They risked competition beyond Wagoner in athletics, speech, music, drama, history and vocational courses.

Teachers shared rooms, took field trips, encouraged excellence, presented programs, used weekends and Saturdays for enrichment, continued their own education.

Cutting costs is nothing new for teachers. They have always had to do that!

Funding Problems Plague Schools

"No" was a word Joe Ethridge was required to say too many times this year. As Acting Superintendent, the buck stopped at his desk.

The problem was — there weren't any "bucks." State funds were cut over and over, disproportionately in the field of education. When the Governor announced the huge state deficit, the legislature had to struggle with various proposals to cut budgets. The original expectation was that an equal percentage would be cut from all state agencies.

Instead, in late January came the passage of a bill reducing the state budget by $150 million, with education funds slashed by $83.8 million — more than half the total reduction.

And all that was just an emergency measure to finish out this school year. The real crisis is expected in the up-coming year.

"There's hard times yet to come," as the old song says.

"Let Me Do It"

Even when we were little, we always wanted to get our hands on everything, especially the things we were not supposed to touch. That was our way of learning and it still is. We now have classes in school that allow us to learn by doing.

In Home-Ec. and Consumer-Ec. we created different foods that prepared us for adult living. In Vocational Office Education and Typing we prepared for jobs in secretarial and other office positions. In Shop class we actually got to use different woodcutting machines. In Art we learned to use our talents to design beautiful and unusual creations. In Science we were allowed to touch and feel rocks and fossils from long ago. And when the computer age arrived we got to experiment with different computer programs in computer classes.

Our hands are our tools for the future, we learn what we need to know by using them.

To See Is to Believe

According to Webster, a laboratory is a place devoted to experimental study in any science.

At Wagoner High School the laboratory remained almost unused during the first semester. Some reasons for staying out of the laboratory at first were the lack of chemicals and other supplies caused by a lack of money, a problem felt so harshly by school districts in the last several years, and the great amount of time Mr. Nichols needed to take inventory and clean glassware.

Students learned early to measure mass and volume, but before further experiments could be done, they needed to understand the principles on which the experiments would operate. By February the chemistry classes knew what they needed to know and were in the lab almost full-time. One of their first operations was a water still for making pure water for more experiments.

The Independent Study science class probably conducted the most experiments. One of their most notable projects was an alcohol still: they learned how it operated, but were perhaps a little disappointed at the results.

Learning Turns to Joy

Creative is the word that we are talking about now — creative arts, creative expression, creative music, and drama.

This year WHS had a new Art Club. The Art Club purpose was to promote art work by WHS students. Fund raising by the Art Club was to help make products for sale.

Going on field trips and seeing other art experiences outside the classroom let students know just how important art work really is.

Other students expressed creativity and responded to the creativity of others in vocal music.

All through the halls one could hear voices singing from the top of their lungs.

Who knows, maybe someday there will be some who will have their own music group and then everyone can say "They Graduated from Wagoner."

Creativity is a talent that carries success into any classroom. In Home Economics students learn more than sewing and cooking skills. They have opportunities to mix fabrics and colors to design attractive clothes, and to mix textures, spices and ingredients for appetizing menus.

English class journals, term papers and even themes as punishment offer opportunities for creativity to those who open their minds to new possibilities.

► As Renee James is cutting on her pattern, she is in as much suspense as we are, in wondering what it will look like.

◀ While being in drama this year, Julie Anderson learns the skills necessary to create a character and portray it on stage.

◀ Lane Harlin is discovering the art of making a stained glass project as beautiful as it can be.

◀ In French class they studied Impressionism. So, like the great painters of that style, Carol Young and Shelly Plunk leave their dark classroom to paint outdoors. A sunny autumn day is a perfect time to catch the light playing on the brightly colored leaves.

With Term Papers, There Is Still Prayer in Schools!

Note cards, bib cards, and magazine articles scattered over a cluttered desk, are just one the sights you see at "term paper" time.

Besides the unorganized feeling, you have the teachers' long lectures, the "unending" outline, the tears of a torn-up rough draft, and the prayers heard every night.

In your mind is this fantasy dream of getting an "A." All the hard work, late hours, and wadded-up papers are worth it when you receive your final draft marked ____!!

Due Tomorrow

Is this a familiar phrase? It should be. It is probably said millions of times daily. In one day there are probably billions of students across the state who have homework, and trillions and trillions of books are carried home and back.

This happens 175 days of a school year. But not all homework is done at home. Many students do their homework at school. They do their English in Psychology. Psychology in Algebra. Algebra in Vocal. Vocal in Chemistry. Chemistry in English! That's an everyday homework assignment for a lot of students. We don't see how they keep their class schedules straight.

Are Students Tortured?

Discipline! Isn't that the word you always hear at school?

For some of the students at WHS, homework and semester exams are the worst discipline in the world.

But wait until you have Detention or In-School Suspension! Some people say it's just like being in prison or in a cage with a mountain lion just waiting for you to make the wrong move.

Believe it or not, there are good things that come out of discipline, too.

Once you do something wrong, you won't try to do the same thing again.

But, of course, there are people who just don't ever learn their lesson, so detention or ISS becomes their second home.

No music, no talking! Just work, work, work! Could you live with all that pressure?

Just hold in there even if the walls look like they are closing in on you.

Even if you don't end up with ISS or detention, in some classes you might just get to write a nice long theme.

Your fingers hurting from all that writing, in your mind you would rather be doing something of more interest to you.

But just hold on, and remember the words of Emerson, "It is the wounded oyster that mends itself with pearl."

▲ Richard Swaringim proudly presents Mr. Pratt with his 2000 word theme and promises that this time he has really learned his lesson.

Advanced in Learning

For students left unchallenged in the average classroom there was the possibility of daring to undertake greater demands. For students who wanted to learn more there were opportunities to seek extra knowledge. For students with an extra hour in their schedule there were small classes with a chance of personal attention from the teacher. These were the Independent Study classes, offered in the areas of vocal music, instrumental music, science, and English.

Students enrolled in Independent Study Vocal Music with the goal of not only strengthening their weaknesses, but also enlarging their strengths. A prerequisite for the class was a background in music, which allowed the students to study advanced music theory. One quality enjoyed by the students was the great amount of individual attention Mrs. Abner was able to give them, as opposed to the other vocal classes. These students were serious about music, with an eye on a possible career in music in the future. Members of the class were Carla Free, Rebecca Jones, Larry Moses, Trey French, Steve Greuel, Steve Nicholas, and Jeff Varisco.

Members of the Independent Study Band practiced longer on harder pieces of music and also learned how to play different kinds of instruments. All of their work made playing with the band easier. Students in the class were Wayne Feterly, Theresa Chandler, Kevin Cottrell, Kenny Kilpatrick, and Adam Miller.

The Independent Study Science class students experimented with the properties of water, sugar crystals, an electric generator, and a fire extinguisher. Some of the students worked on a science fair project. Other activities included using a computer in conjunction with their experiments and seeing films of various topics. The class included Robert Cannon, Phil Foster, Carissa Gregg, Brad Jeffers, Susan Jones, Rickey Keys, Robert McAuliff, Karen Sharp, Steve Townsend and Kelly French.

Studies in poetry, the theater, the novel and the short story, in rotation, formed the course of study of the Independent Study Language Arts class. Mrs. Bennett taught the students to compose an essay in response to a question about a poem or story expressed through some other form of literature. Learning to do this involved writing about the stories they studied, as well as studying vocabulary and grammar usage.

This year the class participated in the Advanced Placement program. By taking a test in the spring and scoring high enough on it, the students would be able to be accepted with sophomore standing in English in many colleges. Scott Dugger was in the class before and after the wrestling season. Other members were Rhonda Hefner, Terrie Holman, Jeanetta Johnson, Rhonda McClellan and James Stansell.

The junior high also had an Independent Studies class in advanced language arts. The eleven members of the class studied vocabulary, literature and writing skills under Mrs. Aldridge.

Cheerleaders Find It Takes Time To Lead School Spirit

▼ Falling pyramids sometimes present a problem.

The Summer Cheerleader Camp started the sports season for eight of the WHS 12 cheerleaders. They won a superior trophy and a spirit stick. Two others attended the NCA pom pon camp, learning pom pon and flash glove routines.

The end of camps meant practice, practice, and more practice. Twice a day these girls put on their practice clothes, once in the morning and once in the afternoon. Braving the heat of over 100° weather, they worked on polishing their cheers, chants and routines.

The beginning of school did not mark the end of practice. Cheerleaders could be found on the north lawn about twice a week during football season with their sponsor Mrs. Dorr supervising.

After cheering through a winning football season, the squad was broken up, with four girls going to each sport — girls basketball, boys basketball and wrestling.

Planning and presenting pep assemblies, and cheering at the games were some of the privileges these girls had.

This small group of Freshmen cheerleaders was definitely enthusiastic. They could be heard above the crowd as they screamed, yelled and chanted the Bulldog teams on to victory. They never let the fact that the Bulldogs didn't always come out on top shatter their enthusiasm.

Before the girls started the school year they attended National Cheerleading Association Camp at Tulsa University. They learned many new cheers and jumps that they were able to bring back to Wagoner with them. History teacher Janice Aldridge was cheerleader sponsor.

This Is Where It All Begins

When the Wagoner Bulldogs run onto the field on Friday nights, the lights are on, the band is playing, and the crowd is cheering. But the Bulldogs don't just show up on Friday nights. The rest of the week is spent preparing by practicing many, many hours. It didn't just begin the first week of the season; there were countless number of hours spent in the weightroom during the summer and the two weeks of two-a-day practices. But with the work of the coaches looking at films, writing scouting reports, and calling the plays, the Bulldogs know they will be rewarded on Friday night.

More Ups Than Downs

The 1983 season was a season of many ups and downs. The Bulldogs staked an impressive 10 and 3 season including a trip to the quarter finals and were runners-up in District 3A-13.

The Bulldogs had many individual honors including eight All-District players and a state scoring championship for Senior Tailback Paul Richardson.

The Bulldog team was rewarded for its efforts with a trip to the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston to see Oklahoma State defeat the Baylor Bears in the Astrodome.

J.H. Football Adds 7th Grade

Junior high football has been weakened in the past by the fact that Wagoner did not sponsor 7th grade football, while many competing schools did. That has given Wagoner players a year less experience.

This year for the first time there was a 7th grade team. It will take a few years for the difference to show, but it is a step toward new strength for Junior High football.

The teams have had their share of wins and losses so the team members know how it feels either way.

Team Runs Strong

With a 75 percent win record, the high school basketball team under Head Coach Jim Penquite and Coaches Joe Gordon and Brett Smith played a great season.

The Bulldogs, went to the State playoffs, where they lost to Cushing by only 5 points. Chris Wilfong made the All State Tournament Team.

In District Finals Wagoner beat Fort Gibson and went home as District winners. Not only did the Bulldogs win first place at the Pryor tournament, but Senior Chris Wilfong made the all tournament team and Junior Stevie Clayton was named most valuable player.

During their season the boys had a streak of eight wins and won their three games against Coweta Tigers, one of the scores being 81-46.

The five seniors were Eric Goff, Billy Hutchens, Rickey Keys, Victor Virgil, and Chris Wilfong.

Girls Show Spirit

As the 1983-84 basketball season for the girls' team wound to a close, the team's spirit rose to a peak.

The day of the game against Monte Casino each player dressed in rolled up jeans, unmatched socks, and T-shirts with winning slogans written all over. With the girls' spirit and determination they won the game that evening. That wasn't the outcome all the time, but the girls put a lot of effort into every game.

Barbara Warren was the new coach for the high school girls this year.

Basketball Court Becomes Royal Court

Ola Mae Robinson was crowned Basketball Queen by Victor Virgil on February 16. The coronation was held at the last regular home game of the regular season, which incidentally had to be rescheduled because of snow.

The Bulldogs played Tahlequah on the night of the coronation.

Senior attendant Tina Reese was escorted by Eric Goff. Junior attendant Gidget Richardson was escorted by Curtis Hill. Sophomore attendant Donnetta Gibbs was escorted by Tony Cozart. Children assisting with the coronation were Alana Dawn Gordon and Benjamin Perry.

Jr. High Looking Forward

Both the 8th and 9th grade basketball teams were very good this season. They won the majority of their games, but there were a few disappointments. There were a lot of hard practices, but they found out it was all worth it when they did well in games.

They are all looking forward to becoming High School Buildogs.

Off to a Good Start

Jr. High Girls basketball got off to a good start this year. Drive, determination, and enthusiasm exhibited by the team led them into a good year. This was especially true for the Freshman girls who had a 9-11 scoreboard compared to a 3-9 record last year.

This year Coach Nancy Malone had a little help from High School Girls Basketball Coach Barbara Warren.

"Roll 'em Over and Pin 'em"

And that is just what the Bulldog matmen did! With 81 total pins the wrestlers had a great season. Led by seniors Johnny Drake, Sterling Nichols, Robert Cannon, Greg Blaylock and Jimmie Murray, the matmen put out a 100% effort to accomplish their goals.

The Bulldog matmen placed 1st at the Wagoner Tournament and 2nd at the Maverick Conference Tournament. We had six wrestlers placing at the Wagoner Tournament and nine wrestlers placing at the Maverick Conference Tournament.

Despite the illnesses they suffered at the end of the season, the Bulldog matmen finished with a 10-7 record.

The Show Must Go On

It was a snowy evening on the night of the wrestling coronation. Braving the snow and ice, which was so bad school was closed the next day, Wagoner fans came out to see Tammy Jones crowned wrestling Queen by captain Johnny Drake.

The Bulldog matmen wrestled Ft. Gibson defeating the Tigers in the bulldog's last home game of the season 62-12.

Tammy's court consisted of first attendant, Senior Cindy Gravitt escorted by co-captain Sterling Nichols; second attendant, Senior Rhonda Hefner escorted by co-captain Greg Blaylock; and third attendant, Senior Jamie Martin escorted by co-captain Robert Cannon.

Crown bearers were Necia Byrd and Brad Montgomery.

What It Takes to Win

Winning is fun, so this was a fun year for Junior High A and B Team wrestlers.

At the Skiatook Tournament the team took third place, and second place at Westville.

Wrestling is not a game of brute force, but a game of skill and strategy. Wrestlers put in a hard 45 minute workout each day.

They work on new moves and improve old ones. But more than the 45 minute workouts in the gym, the wrestlers work out at home and follow a careful weight program.

Good Season for Softball

Team spirit was the emphasis of new softball coach, Barbara Warren. The girls' softball team may not have won many games, but the girls experienced the team morale, spirit, fun, and determination that makes a good season. In the midst of the hottest temperatures of many autumn seasons, the team practiced hard, worked hard, and played hard.

"Everybody learned a lot from Coach Warren," said one team member.

The players and Mrs. Warren predict a good girls' softball team next year because many of the starters will still be here.

Senior members this year were Kristy Casey, Carissa Gregg, Susan Jones, Tina Reese, Ola Mae Robinson, and Karen Sharp.

It Wasn't Easy

A lot of decision making was part of being on the yearbook staff. Decisions had to be made about the size, color, and theme of the book, how many pages to have and much more. The biggest and most controversial decision involved choosing gray for the cover color of the book. This is the first gray yearbook in Dog Daze history!

When it came down to doing a single page, a lot of decisions were put on the individual: what pictures to use, how big to make the dominant picture, how much copy to write and which captions to use.

Although being on the yearbook staff sounds easy, that isn't always the case. For first year students a new vocabulary had to be learned: terms like pica, quad-pak, dominant picture, reverse type, overburn, cropper and proofs. Learning how to design a layout (and doing it right), writing copy and captions, and scrounging for pictures were some other hardships.

Editors were named for many different parts of the book so that one person was in charge of each section. This editor helped anyone having trouble with his pages, and also saw that each page was consistent with others in that section. Those editors were Editor-in-Chief, Chelynn McCullough; Index Editor, Kathy Cowden; Academics Editor, James Stansell; Class Section Editor, Lisa Erwin; Sports Editor, Tammy Jones; Activities Editor, Renee Breed; Student Life Editor, Steve Swaringim; and Design Artists, Kelly Galusha and Chris Wilfong. The staff was proud to have the two chosen as Most Creative Seniors as design artists for the yearbooks.

The merchandising assembly began yearbook sales early in the year not only to make names on the cover possible, but also to reduce publishing costs. Students assembled early in November when the secret agent disguised as a lamp (played by Curtis Hill) tried to steal the secret plans to the yearbook. The suspense built up as the yearbook staff continued to work, unaware that the strange-looking lamp was moving stealthily toward the filing cabinet. Naturally, the thief was caught before he escaped with the plans, but students were reminded that some people would do anything to catch an early glimpse of their yearbook.

The staff put in many long, hard hours in their efforts to complete the yearbook. When the final deadline approached, work parties after school and on weekends became necessary in order to have the yearbook in on time. After all the work was done and every page was finished, however, the staff had reason to celebrate. They were rewarded at first by seeing proofs of the finished pages and later by being the first to see the yearbooks when they came in.

Queen's Name Held Captive

The announcement of which class's candidates would be crowned King and Queen was a secret until the day of the coronation. The coronation was held at the yearbook distribution.

All three candidates walked out onto the floor; first Senior, then Junior and next Sophomore. Then . . .

Pride of Wagoner

Did I hear someone say dedicated? That's the Bulldog Marching Band. Who else would be at the band room as the sun is rising so that when Friday night football came around they could entertain and get the crowd's enthusiasm roaring.

There are many special people that have made contributions to the band. Some of their accomplishments were All-Star Band, All-District Band, Band Hall of Fame, and United States National Band Association Honorees. The band as a whole received three trophies for marching in parades.

Not only did the band work hard during marching and concert seasons, they also sold various items working toward their goal of seventy new band uniforms in 1984-85.

Band Coronation Rained Out

Because of bad weather, the band coronation was not held in its usual place, the football field. Instead, the coronation took place in the gymnasium, on December 12, at the Christmas concert.

Junior Theresa Chandler was crowned queen by Wayne Feterly. Theresa plays trumpet, piano, organ, french horn, and has been working on the saxophone. She was also a member of the 1983 Oklahoma All-Star Marching Band.

Wayne was the only senior band member and was president. Wayne plays trombone.

Junior attendant Sharon Lee was escorted by Kenny Kilpatrick. Sharon plays flute and has been in band seven years. She was a member of the United States Band Award Association and elected to the Junior Band Hall of Fame. She has won seven superior ratings at solo/ensemble contests.

Kenny plays baritone and has been in band six years. He was the Secretary-Treasurer of the band. He was selected for the 1983 Oklahoma All-Star Marching Band, as well as the Junior Band Hall of Fame.

Sophomore attendant Katie Kelliher was escorted by Don Denton. Katie plays clarinet. She made 9th chair in the Eastern District Band. Don plays trombone. He has been in band for 5 years.

Crown bearers were Michelle Sutterfield and T. J. Goeke.

Busy!

Who had class on Saturday? For Competitive Speech students it was worse than that. Saturday was the longest day of the week. After weeks (or sometimes after just a few days) of preparations, class members got up before dawn, dressed in their best clothes and headed off for area schools to compete in prose, poetry, drama, oratory and extemporaneous speaking.

This year three students won trophies and thus qualified for regional competition in March. Even for those three, their reward for winning was to give up two days of their Spring Break to participate in the regional tournament at Sand Springs.

Thanks to the generosity of some Wagoner businesses and some generous guests at the Competitive Speech class benefit performance, the class raised enough money to attend O.U. Model United Nations of the Southwest. This was the third year for WHS to participate in the simulation of a real United Nation session.

Wagoner represented the nations of Angola and Tanzania at this year's four day session. Resolutions dealt with crises in the real world and tried to solve such problems as the nuclear arms proliferation, endangered species, terrorism and wars in Central America.

After O.U., students came back ready to choose new countries, research new topics and take power at Chickasha's M.U.N. in April.

Students

The main emphasis of Girls' and Boys' State was to learn about the different levels of government. Four students from Wagoner participated last spring, about the time school was ending, two in Boys' State and two in Girls' State. Phil Foster, Johnny Drake, Jamielu Stacy and Carissa Gregg were chosen by the American Legion to take part in these events.

Girls' State and Boys' State were very similar happenings even though they did not occur at the same time or place. At both of them students from all over Oklahoma came together and were divided into cities and counties.

◀ Mrs. Bennett, the Upward Bound sponsor, really has to work hard to keep ahead of her students because she tutors in every area of academics.

Students Enjoy Learning

All students want to have fun and a few laughs, but some students at Wagoner High School have discovered how to have fun while still striving for academic excellence.

The Upward Bound students met for tutoring sessions in order to "make better grades all the time," but they also went on educational trips that could be fun: Gilcrease, Woodland Hills Mall, Okmulgee Tech, a play in Tulsa and concerts.

These students received communication from other students in other schools by means of a monthly newspaper and also had the opportunity to make new friends, set goals, and even spend several weeks in the summer on a college campus.

Some of the more capable students in math had the honor of tutoring the other students because the main tutor was sometimes inadequate in that area.

Learn About Government

They had to compaign for offices on the city, county, and state levels. When the elections were not in progress, the students were in classes studying about government out of the college's textbooks.

Between the educational activities and the available recreational activities the hours were fully employed, but the activities increased the opportunities for making new friends.

Both Carissa and Jamielu were elected to state offices at Girls' State, Carissa was minority whip in the House of Representatives and Jamielu was state representative #5. They had the opportunity to help pass bills and enact laws. Time was set aside on Thursday of that week for a picnic followed by a concert, and Jamielu received a drum stick from the drummer of the band.

Phil and Johnny had more time for recreation, and a choice between basketball, softball and tennis. The softball team Johnny was the captain of went to "state playoffs," but was finally defeated. The boys, too, held elections and studied in classes. One thought that might have bothered them that week was that they were missing the semester tests and would have to take those tests during summer vacation.

Marketing Leaders Receive Training

The Distributive Education Clubs of America — otherwise known as DECA — is an organization whose program of leadership is designed specifically for students enrolled in Distributive Education/Marketing. DECA is the only national youth organization operating in the nation's schools to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution.

Distributive Education/Marketing students have common objectives and interests in that each is studying for a specific career objective. DECA members learn to serve as leaders and followers, and have opportunity for state and national recognition that they would not have otherwise.

House Lights Dim . . .

Putting on a play for children has become a yearly project of the Drama class. For many class members it is their first time in front of an audience and, thus, a frightening experience. But when it is over and they reflect back, they almost unanimously recount the high point as being the response on the faces of the children.

It took every student in the class, playing a role (and a stage crew of two) to produce Sleeping Beauty for the children at Lincoln School.

Rehearsals were in a crowded classroom within the class period. With only two evenings to run through the whole play at once, no one was sure exactly how things would work in a large gymnasium when the storyteller Johnna Wells asked the children to stand up and become the trees of the forest.

Dramatic and humorous duet scenes, improvisations, theatre skills, and play production rounded out the year in class.

Many from the class were among the all-school cast and crew of the spring musical Guys and Dolls.

'The Actor's Nightmare'

The rush of Christmas signaled time for the drama department to begin auditions for the Regional One-Act Play contest. Five students began rehearsing "The Actor's Nightmare," and sometimes the nightmare seemed more real than theatrical. After performance at Oologah, they brought the play back to a Wagoner audience.

Randy Anthony and Butch Thomas took full charge of lights, sets and sound effects.

FLC Reaches Around the World

FLC[1] has grown to a membership of 47 'magnifico'[2] students.

The annual initiation was for each member to eat an escargot with grace, if possible. Initiation took place during the FLC Halloween party at Holly Hamilton's. That night the members broke off into small groups, "trick or treating" for UNICEF all over the town of Wagoner. Over $140 was collected and sent to the United Nations Children's Fund.

On November 13 some FLC members helped out at the CROP Walk while others walked the 10 miles for donations that went to needy people around the world through the Church World Service.

FLC sold advent calendars with German Chocolates in each window. The money went into their fund for their end-of-the-'tres bien'[3]-year trip down the Illinois River.

A progressive dinner was planned for the Christmas party in which each course served was from a different country. But that night the roads were 'erribly-tay'[4] iced over and the party was held at Carissa Gregg's house instead of at all 'batano' houses first planned on.

1984 was a 'bonne annee'[6] for FLC members. Ask one, he'll have a lot to say.

1. FLC — Abbreviation for Foreign Language Club.
2. Magnifico — Spanish for magnificant.
3. Tres bien — French for very good.
4. Erribly-tay — Pig Latin for terribly.
5. Batano — Lonkundo for five.
6. Bonne année — French for great year.

FBLA — "The Future Business Leaders!"

With the club tripling in size, FBLA was very busy with many activities this year, starting with a "get-to-know-each-other" party at Mrs. Lewis' home.

They sponsored Open House at the High School. In October, they had a Halloween party. There were also cans brought for the Thanksgiving pyramid. During the Christmas holidays, they had a bake sale, brought toys for "Toys for Tots," and had a Christmas party at the community building. To raise money for the State Conference the members sponsored Matinees at the Westwood Theatre on Wednesday afternoons.

During National Vocational Education Week, FBLA had a "business attire" day where all members dressed in dresses, suits, and slacks. Also, during this week they sponsored a coffee for the business merchants. During the coffee the merchants learned more about Vocational Office Education (VOE).

FBLA members also attended State Leadership Conference in Oklahoma City on April 1, 2, and 3. They competed in such areas as Job Interv Business English, Public Speaking, and Accoun I.

Tammy Jones and Richard Swaringim were and Ms. Future Business Leader. They compete this area at State Leadership Conference.

The officers were very proud of the numbe members they had this year, and the students' volvement in the club. They will definitely be "The Future Business Leaders!"

Hurrah for the Blue & Gold

Students interested in farming enroll in Future Farmers of America as early as 9th grade. FFA is a Vocational education program that includes classwork, outside projects, and district, state and national competitions.

Students learn about animals, machinery and all that farming consists of. FFA is taught by Rance Robison.

To sum it all up, FFA is a learning experience that helps students who are interesting in becoming successful farmers.

Never Too Soon

The teen years are not too soon to start learning the basics of homemaking.

Students in Future Homemakers of America participate in both the class and the club. They learn skills in child care, cooking, and sewing.

Besides classwork and club meetings members participate in service projects, parties, and area meetings. Members attend the FHA State Convention in Oklahoma City.

Parents are guests of club members at their spring banquet and coronation of royalty.

At Christmas time the club traditionally provides a Christmas party for children in the Head Start program. They make and stuff stockings. Dressed as elves and bringing Santa Claus with them, they treat the children to toys, games, and food, as well as the stockings.

Officers for this school year were Christy Johnson, president and Lisa Crist, vice-president. The secretary was Shelly Elsey, the treasurer was Tina Migis and Karlene Oxford was reporter.

Monica Gross served the club as parliamentarian and Anita Orsburn as historian.

The leader for devotions was Tiffany Canary and leader for music and recreation was Lori Rankins.

Lora VanBrunt was the freshman representative.

But leave out the part — "till death do us part," because this marriage won't last beyond the week.

No, Family Living class was not trying to promote early marriage. The purpose of the mock wedding and reception was part of a larger program teaching teenagers to examine all angles of what looks like a simple romantic ceremony.

Family Living class looked at many other angles of adult life for the single or married young adult. Cooking, meal planning, childbirth, death rites, choosing a house, financial planning, are other topics covered through the year.

Spirit Builders

Members of the student council were the ones chosen to represent Wagoner at the Second Annual Don Nickles Youth Legislation Conference. The group of senior high school students from Senator Nickles' district listened to speakers on the "Role of the Media," "Drugs and Alcohol" and "America's National Defense Policy." Time was set aside for students to participate in the Conference; they were able to ask questions of Senator Nickles and also speak of their opinions of education today. The four students from Wagoner were Kelly Galusha, Carissa Gregg, Rhonda McClellan, and Dawn Wofford.

Throughout the year the task of the Student Council is to stimulate school spirit. To accomplish this they sponsored several events. Two of the dances they put on were the Homecoming dance and the Valentines' dance.

Before Thanksgiving arrived, they sponsored a food drive in order to see that some needy families in Wagoner could have a good Thanksgiving meal. Other events sponsored by the student council were dress-up days throughout the year. It was also the student council that decided the categories for the Seniors with the Most.

Student Council sponsor was Joe Galloway. Officers were President Gregg and Vice President Scott Dugger.

Students Find Joy in Giving

The big project of the year for the Junior High Student Council was the Thanksgiving food drive.

The school raised over $700 worth of food and money. A competition among the three grades for the largest amount in donations was won by the Eighth Grade. They were $100 ahead of the second place Freshmen. Eighth Grade generosity won them an extended lunch period.

The Student Council also sponsored an all-school movie on Halloween.

Christians Find Fellowship In Early Morning

Every Wednesday and Friday morning at 8:00, Christians from different churches meet together to sing, pray and have fellowship. Prayer is always great fun because it's illegal in schools!

Teens for Christ members are helping people and are willing to lend a hand to those who need it. They walked for hunger and collected toys for Toys for Tots program and food for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Members have made special contributions to the club by leading devotions and songs.

Mrs. Ron Freeman, Rev. Jeff Moore, Rev. Mike Cox and a missionary, Mr. Paul Witte and his daughter came to speak and lead a devotion to those who came in and listened.

F.C.A. is a worldwide organization for coaches and athletes. Statewide meetings and rallies are held along with superstar competitions. In the summer there are state wide and national camps for the athletes and coaches.

Here at WHS, Mr. Freeman and Mr. Galloway hold meetings at 8:00 Friday mornings for FCA. Also included are church breakfasts and guest speakers.

Can't Stop the Music

Ask any high school student about that! On any given day first, second and third hours the voices of the Wagoner High School students could be heard echoing down the halls.

Do-Re-Mi-Fa-So-La-Ti-Do was often heard and looked upon as being a foreign language by other high school students. Actually it was the way the chorus warmed-up their voices. One of Mrs. Abner's beliefs was that it is just as important to exercise the voice as it is to exercise the muscles. Voice muscles not exercised will lose their tone.

Besides just classroom time, vocal members were involved in other activities such as All-District Chorus, Choral Festival at Northeastern State University, and performed solos, ensembles or were in the chorus at the annual district contest.

Queen Crowned at Christmas Concert

Amid the glow of candles and Christmas lights, with a giant cedar tree towering above, and the aroma of evergreen permeating the gym, the vocal music department honored their royalty at the annual Christmas concert.

Patsy Hickey was crowned queen by President Eric Goff.

Her attendants were Senior Chris Whychell, escorted by Luke Sanco; Junior Jamesetta Blandon, escorted by Allen Gilford; and Sophomore Shelly Elsey escorted by Thomas Wing. Crown bearers were Addie Wilfong and Jarrod Dumond.

Patsy served as an attendant her sophomore and junior year. Jamesetta served as an attendant her sophomore year also.

Alive With the Sound of Music

Large classes and afternoon hours make the auditorium a lively place when junior high vocal meets there 5th and 6th hours.

Students soon learn that it's not an hour "for messin' around," when Mrs. Abner approaches the podium.

JH vocal students are introduced to three and four part harmony, learn to read music, perform before an audience and, most dreaded of all, sing individually for 9 weeks' test.

This year JH Vocal performed at the Christmas concert, PTA Open House and the Spring Concert.

Some traveled to NSU for a dance workshop and all spent the day at the NSU Choral Workshop.

Many were willing to risk competition beyond Wagoner competing in the District with solos and ensembles.

In Vocal class students learn that the world "... is alive with the sound of music."

It Sounds So Easy

VICA Students learn step-by-step to construct a house.

First is the groundwork, marking off corners and edges pouring and shaping the foundation. Then plumbing materials are set in place.

Next comes the walls and roof (the skeleton of the house). After that comes sheetrock, insulation, and interior walls and roof. Following this comes bathroom and kitchen facilities and the electrician pays a visit. Next comes windows, gutters, exterior design, shingles, paint, etc.

Soon after, all the students can stand back and take a good look at their accomplishment and realize it is a house that everyone can be proud of. All of their team work has paid off and each student played a part.

Get Technical

Every day at 7:30 and again at 11:20 Vo-Tech students left Wagoner on a bus to Muskogee where a different kind of excitement and learning experience began.

Sherry Cragle was enrolled in the food production management. Sherry was in this program for two years and she said she really liked it. Sherry and other students that were in the Food Production Program cooked food for the banquets, Open House, and they also decorated cakes.

Earl Gifford was another Wagoner student in Vo-Tech. He was studying landscaping and yard maintenance. He said that it has been a fun program for him.

Vo-Tech offered opportunities for those who were interested in having the training for a good job after high school.

Other courses offered were nursing, mechanics, graphic arts, electronics, and drafting.

► Maybe one day when you need something repaired on your car, Todd Kochell might just be your auto mechanic.

Senior Kim Courtney who works at Wagoner Flower Shop remembers a scary experience that happened while she was delivering flowers to a funeral home. Tinker Coles and she had just finished setting up the flowers around a casket and had turned to leave when Kim heard a loud thump. Kim took off running to the car screaming, "Run, Tinker, he's alive!" It turned out that a bouquet of roses had fallen over in front of the casket. Kim worked at the flower shop for over a year. She worked after school and on Saturday mornings. Her many jobs ranged from making snowcones, arranging flowers, and delivering them, to cleaning up the shop. In May Kim was married to David Johnson (class of '83) so her working was to save money for their future. Kim plans to stay in the flower business and to go as far as possible in this business. Maybe someday Kim will own her own flower shop. She hopes so.

Chelynn McCullough didn't work for a living but rather for spending money in her pocket and payments on her car. Chelynn filed, posted, figured sales tickets and typed many ledger cards at the Wagoner Lumber Co.

Because she worked only from 2:00 to 5:00, her job didn't take away from her school and other activities. Besides, she said, she enjoyed her work.

There's good news and bad news in any job, but for Becky Duell the good outweighed the bad. Working after school hours at Ben Franklin, she found that the variety of tasks performed meant learning new things and no chance to get bored.

But the big advantage was working right downtown where she could still see her friends who dropped by.

Boring was never a word to describe her job. In fact she said she looked forward to her hours on the job.

A Salute to the Class of '84

When you are craving something 'scrumpdillyishous,' Krista Osborn or Holly Walton could cook up something for you at Dairy Queen. They took your order, ran the cash register, fixed your food, and then cleaned up after you left.

Krista has worked at Dairy Queen over a year and Holly 2 years. They worked for the money and the experience, but admitted it did take time away from other fun activities.

"We sometimes miss football games," Krista said. "I don't have much time to be with my family and friends."

This was a rare view of Adam Miller at French's TV and Appliance. Usually Adam was on the move, delivering TV's and appliances, helping customers when he could, and cleaning up "everything." He was also learning how to repair and install TV's.

Adam didn't work just for spending money, but for the knowledge of electronics he learned on the job. Though his job sometimes took away from other activities, Adam really enjoyed it.

"I get to meet all the business people while working downtown. It makes me feel like a real part of the Wagoner community."

There was no "pounding the pavement" of job hunting for Keli Peck and Jamie Martin. They got their job through the CETA federal job program, which also paid their salaries.

It took a month of red tape to find their name on the Indian Role and prove Indian heritage in order to qualify for the program.

They both spent this year in the office of the county Treasurer, typing tax statements and filing tax returns.
